FIRST BOYS IN GRAY ARE HERE

Two Confederate Soldiers in Gray Uniforms Attract Attention on Streets of Town. Four Troops of Cavalry March in.

The first of the "Johnny Rebs" to arrive on the scene of the battle anniversary reached Gettysburg this morning at eleven o'clock in the persons of William Page and William F. Brawner who are wearing the gray and at once became the center of attraction.

Both men were besieged immediately upon their arrival by a large party of "boys in blue" and given the warmest sort of welcome. All during the day as they wandered their way about town, the foes of fifty years ago stopped them to extend a cordial handshake and wish them the best of times during their stay here. The greeting could not have been more sincere and the men are happy as youngsters over their good time.

The two Southerners come from the Soldiers' Home at Pikesville, Maryland. Throughout the war they were comrades and tentmates fighting side by side in one engagement after another, and now they are spending their years together at the Pikesville Home. At the Battle of Gettysburg they fought on Culp's Hill as members of the Second Maryland Infantry, the only Confederate regiment having a monument on the field.

Four troops of the Fifteenth United States Cavalry arrived in town shortly before noon to-day from Fort Myer, having been on the march since last Monday. They spent Wednesday night at Thurmont and rode into Gettysburg in a driving rain. The troopers did not take time to put on their ponchos but rode on to their camp immediately west of Seminary Ridge along the Hagerstown Road.

By to-night every bit of food which is to be consumed at the big camp next week—exclusive of the ice cream for July 4—will be at hand and no shortage of supplies for the veterans will be possible.

The non-perishable supplies, such as potatoes and canned goods have been unloaded and the meats stored in a long line of refrigerator cars on a siding constructed for that purpose. Eight carloads of ice are on this same siding and all is in readiness for the arrival of the first visitors on Sunday evening. The precaution of getting things here at such an early date was taken to avoid any embarrassment in case of trouble on the railroads, and with the four powerful wells the veterans may be assured of plenty to eat and drink.

In discussing the preparations at the camp, Major Normoyle said to-day: "We are thoroughly prepared, and have the entire situation thoroughly in hand. Every old soldier when he comes here will find things in readiness for him. He will be met at the train and shown the location of his tent. If he is not able to carry his baggage, some one will be here to do it for him. At his tent everything will be prepared to receive him. He will not have to do a stroke of work not even fill the buckets in his tent."

"The railroads have consented to bring every train of veterans right into the camp, and no one will have to walk any distance. A specially built platform has been constructed, so that all may be unloaded at once and make room for others. We plan to handle the crowd without any confusion, and believe we can place them in the camp as fast as the railroads bring them here."

Fire Chief John C. Kinder, of Harrisburg, has completed arrangements for sending one of the volunteer fire companies of Harrisburg to serve at the Gettysburg anniversary celebration next week at the request of State Fire Marshal Baldwin. The State Fire Marshal Baldwin. The Citizen combination chemical and hose wagon, one of the very best in the department, will be brought to Gettysburg on Saturday morning, June 28, and remain eight or nine days.

The Eighth Regiment Band of Carlisle will be the official band for the anniversary and will play at all the principal exercises. A number of other bands are expected and there will be plenty of music in the camp. The Eighth Band has played here frequently during National Guard encampments.

About 50,000 people are already on the Gettysburg battlefield.—Waynesboro Record.

MANY CANCEL RESERVATIONS

Fearing Congestion and Shortage of Food Many Persons who had Engaged Rooms here Decide to Stay away. Anniversary Notes.

As the result of stories which have gained general circulation throughout the country Gettysburg people are receiving daily, letters from persons, who had engaged accommodations over the time of the anniversary, saying that they are not coming. At one place thirty five such letters have been received and smaller numbers are reported by scores of residents.

The news published in metropolitan dailies that people would have trouble getting here on account of congestion on the railroads, that there might be a shortage in the food supply of the town, that the death rate among the veterans was expected to be high, and similar other discouraging things, have had the result which might have been expected and hundreds have changed their minds about making the trip here.

That this will cause any great inconvenience to local persons is not expected, for the town will have more than it can comfortably care for if only one-half the estimated crowd comes, and rooms which are now engaged will have plenty of occupants when the anniversary celebration opens.

While many may still get rooms and boarding in Gettysburg the visitors continue to engage similar accommodations in nearby towns. Hotels in Hanover, Chambersburg, Hagerstown and the Blue Ridge section are filling rapidly and many have reserved all their rooms for the week of the celebration. Requests for more rooms are received by individuals in Gettysburg daily and the town will be filled without question.

Enormous supplies have been laid in for the week. One of the hotels is arranging to use 3600 eggs daily. One of the refreshment places in the town has bought 2500 pounds of ham. Chickens by the hundreds have been purchased and staples are in every pantry. The present crowds are not a circumstance when compared with what may be expected here Sunday and the days succeeding but the effect of the approaching "big time" is being keenly felt.

Deputy Warden Jameson, of the Colorado penitentiary will spend a month's vacation at his boyhood home in Gettysburg, where he will attend the celebration. Jameson was born six miles from Gettysburg and as a lad of 11 years of age remembers distinctly the battle fought near his home a half century ago. He was present at the dedication of the battlefield and heard Lincoln's famous address. Just before leaving Canon City on his trip, Mr. Jameson was presented by the local Knights of Pythias' Lodge with a veteran's jewel given as a special mark of respect to those who have been members of the order over twenty-five years. Jameson has been connected with the order over forty-three years and was at one time grand chancellor of the domain of Colorado.

Telegrams and notices from governors are being received at the office of the Gettysburg semi-centennial celebration giving information of hundreds of additional veterans who plan to attend the ceremonies of next week. When the $35,000 appropriation to provide for veterans above the 40,000 estimate was agreed upon word was sent to all states with a request for prompt replies so that preparations could be made.

Seventeen members of the State Constabulary are encamped on Nixon Field. The remainder, 150 in number, will arrive Saturday. Among those now here are Corporal R. E. Tipton and Private R. A. Tipton, both Gettysburg boys. Lieutenant Mayer is in command of the detail already here. Captain John C. Groome will be in command over the time of the anniversary.

If that was a Confederate celebration at Gettysburg next week Wilson would be there, likely all week. Watch Woodrow get the Union veterans' vote in 1916, nit—Chambersburg Repository.

Today the arrangements for the Red Cross detachment were completed. There will be 70 Red Cross nurses and 10 Red Cross physicians in the camp.

HERE FOR THE ENCAMPMENT

Pennsylvania Veterans Arrive in Town for their Annual Encampment. Various Orders Elect their Officers. Sons Parade.

Pennsylvania's veterans by the scores arrived in town to-day for their annual encampment which opens to-morrow morning in the Wizard Theatre. This evening a camp fire will be held in the Court House.

The chief topic of interest among the veterans is the big celebration next week. Many of those here for the encampment have engaged rooms in town for the next ten days and will not go into the tents, preferring the accommodations in the homes which they have enjoyed in past years on similar occasions.

Among the most missed men is Chaplain Sayres, who for almost fifty years was the department chaplain, and who died during the winter. Attention was called to-day to the beautiful memorial service which he conducted in the National Cemetery at the time of last year's encampment. Out of respect to his memory no one was appointed to fill his place and it is not likely that such a service will be conducted during this year's meeting.

Sons of Veterans

At the Wednesday afternoon session of the Sons of Veterans in Xavier Hall Sunbury was chosen without opposition for next year's encampment. The organization decided to offer a $25 gold medal to the boy or girl, not over sixteen years of age, residing in a town where there is a Sons of Veterans' camp, who writes the best essay of not more than 500 words on "The Battle of Gettysburg." The medal will be presented at next year's encampment.

The following officers were elected this morning, commander, T. M. Ruch, Hellertown; senior vice commander, C. A. Boyles, McKeesport; junior vice commander, Monroe Gaston, Pottsville; division council, W. L. Higgs, H. S. Coggins and H. M. Zuhndel; delegate at large to encampment at Chattanooga in August, R. C. Miller, Gettysburg.

A telegram announced the death of Past Commander V. T. Jones, of Pittsburgh. The newly elected officers were installed by Commander Grant, of Hartford. The morning session closed the convention.

The Sons of Veterans camp was drenched thoroughly by the rains of yesterday and to-day but this did not serve in any way to dampen the enthusiasm of the seven hundred men in the camp. Wednesday evening the parade was given in town and witnessed by hundreds of people who lined the sidewalks. The regular routine of camp life continues.

Woman's Relief Corps

Wednesday afternoon the Woman's Relief Corps of Pennsylvania, presented a beautiful silk flag to the Presbyterian Sunday School. The flag is about four and one half by six feet. A pleasing program was rendered, as follows: prayer by the pastor, Rev. F. E. Taylor, singing "America," address by Department President Frances K. Lewis, singing, The Star Spangled Banner; presentation of the flag, Department Patriotic Instructor, Mrs. Ella McDurdy; acceptance of the flag, by Rev. F. E. Taylor, in the absence of the Superintendent Robert K. Major; recitation, "Drake's American Flag," by Miss Margaret Stewart; singing, "Rally Round the Flag Boys," remarks by Mrs. Isabella W. Ball, the National Senior Vice-President; Mrs. Abbie Lynch, the National Treasurer, and Mrs. Sarah E. Staplin, Past Department President for the State of Kansas.

The Woman's Relief Corps elected these officers, president, Mrs. E. Louise Foote, Wilkes-Barre; senior vice president, Mrs. Kate C. Horton; junior vice president, Miss Ely, Lykens; treasurer, Mrs. Jennie E. Carrington, Oil City.

Ladies of the G. A. R.

The Ladies of the G. A. R. have elected the following officers: president, Mrs. Mary Spellis, Philadelphia; senior vice president, Mrs. Emma Sharkey, Philadelphia; junior vice president, Mrs. Murren, of Philadelphia; treasurer, Miss Emma Lewis, Pittsburgh; chaplain, Mrs. Tillie V. Hutchinson, Allentown. Greetings were received from the other organizations in convention here.

NEED NOT FEAR FOR TOWN TREES

Maple Trees Affected by Pest which will not Cause Serious Injury according to Dr. Surface, the State Zoologist.

In view of the general alarm felt about town over many fine maple trees losing their leaves, Martin Winter communicated with Dr. H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, who writes that the Norway Maple aphid is to blame. "The infestation will not be sufficiently serious to require treatment," says Dr. Surface. "It appears each summer but will not kill the tree."

"This is commonly called the Norway Maple Aphid. Generally during the early part of the summer they cause considerable concern by infesting the leaves of Norway maple trees, and causing them to drop to some extent. The infested leaves have a sticky substance upon them which is also to be seen on the sidewalks under the trees, looking like drops of oil. This is honey dew, which has been produced by the aphids, and which attracts ants and other insects in great numbers.

"As these aphids are sucking insects, they can not be killed by arsenical sprays for chewing insects. To destroy them one can spray with one pound of whale oil soap in about five or six gallons of water or kerosene emulsion containing about eight or ten per cent. kerosene, or very strong tobacco decoction, but as a rule it is not necessary to do anything for them. They will cause some leaves to drop, which will not permanently injure the trees. Every year we receive great numbers of them, sent to this office with the inquiry as to what to do for them, and we have never yet seen evidence of their permanent damage.

"They will disappear later in the season, although they cause considerable alarm at the present time. Keep the trees thrifty and growing by watering if the season should become dry, and by giving the trees some nitrogen plant food in the form of nitrate of soda or cleanings from the poultry house, or commercial fertilizer."

FREE SUGAR AND WOOLMAINTAINED

President's Proposition Upheld by Senators.

WERE ONLY SIX OPPONENTS

Pledging of Members to Caucus Action Will Probably Follow Consideration of the Entire Bill.

Washington, June 26.—Free sugar in 1916 and free raw wool are now established in the tariff revision bill, having been approved by the Democratic caucus of the senate after a two days' fight.

The sugar schedule as reported by the majority members of the finance committee and practically as it passed the house, was approved by a vote of 40 to 6. Free raw wool as submitted by the majority, and just as it passed the house, swept the senate caucus by a vote of 41 to 6.

This ratification of President Wilson's tariff policy, he having insisted upon the wool and sugar propositions before the ways and means committee in the beginning, came after a long series of developments since the tariff bill passed the house in which the president has been an active participant.

When the fight of the anti-free sugar and anti-free wool Democrats was getting hot the president issued a public statement declaring that any suggestion of compromise on his wool and sugar schedule ideas was absolutely out of the question, and later he stirred all administration leaders to action when he made his charge about his existence in Washington of an "insidious lobby," an investigation of which has brought results regarded as favorable to the tariff bill.

No attempt was made in the caucus to bind the members to the action of the caucus. The question will come up when the entire bill has been passed upon. Some members will fight it, but administration leaders said that they believed only the two Louisiana senators would ask to be released from the caucus pledge if one is submitted. The general opinion is that a binding resolution will be offered.

Approval of the schedules came after prolonged discussion and after several amendments had been voted down. On some of the amendments the opposition showed more strength, the maximum being ten votes for Senator Sharfrott's amendment to the sugar schedule. This would have eliminated free sugar and substituted a duty of approximately one-half cent a pound on refined sugar. This amendment was lost by a vote of 37 to 10.

When sugar and wool had been disposed of the caucus ratified the committee amendment placing half of the Angola goat on the free list. Consideration of the agricultural schedule was then resumed and a dispute at once arose over the committee amendment putting a countervailing duty on wheat and flour. As the discussion developed the opposition grew and the decision of the question went over.

Administration leaders expect the tariff bill to be reported to the senate next week.

THROAT CUT IN HOTEL

It is Said Bud Fisher's Wife Tried to Commit Suicide.

Atlanta, Ga., June 26.—With a gash five inches long in her throat, Pauline Welch, the vaudeville actress and wife of Cartoonist Bud Fisher, is at the Piedmont hotel here in a serious condition.

The actress received the wound in her apartments at the Piedmont hotel. There are rumors that she tried to commit suicide after a quarrel with her husband, but both Mr. and Mrs. Fisher say the injury was accidental.

Fisher and his wife, who appeared in vaudeville, retired after midnight at the Piedmont hotel. Mrs. Fisher says she rose at 2 o'clock and went to the bathroom to fill a pitcher containing ice with water. There was no light, and she says she stumbled and fell against the bathtub, the pitcher being broken. She fell against a jagged piece of the pitcher and her throat was cut. When physicians arrived Mrs. Fisher had fainted from loss of blood. Twenty stitches were taken in the wound.

INSISTS ON PROBE INTO M'NAB EXPOSE

Demands Congress Take Up White Slave Case Delay.

Washington, June 26.—Representative Kahn, of California, declared that President Wilson's action in directing immediate prosecution of the Dixie Camille and the Western Fuel company cases would not deter him from pressing his resolution for a congressional investigation of the causes of the delay.

The Kahn resolutions are scheduled to come up today at a hearing before the house judiciary committee.

President Wilson and Attorney General McReynolds had a conference to select a special prosecutor for the white slave cases and the Western Fuel company indictments.

With the wheels of the department of justice grinding again on the celebrated cases, administration officials made no effort to conceal their relief. Official Washington reflected that feeling. Probably no issue with which President Wilson has had a deal since his inauguration has attracted such widespread attention.

It is President Wilson's intention to procure Francis J. Heney, if possible, to take the cases. He is regarded as being specially desirable, because he has no political interests with the administration.

With the selection of a prosecutor and McNab's retirement, the White House will consider the noted case a closed incident.

DEATH LIST GROWS

Eleven Dead and 26 Missing After Elevator Explosion.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 26.—The official checking of the list of employees of the Hoisted Milling company, whose elevator was blown up by a dust explosion, shows, besides the eleven dead taken out, that twenty-six men are still unaccounted for and are believed to be in the ruins.

Three bodies were dug out of the smoldering ruins of the elevator, two more are visible in the wreckage, and the bodies of the victims succumbed to their injuries, bringing the total of the dead list from the explosion and fire up to eleven. The bodies recovered were so badly charred that identification was impossible.

Anthony Kruger and William Widowsky, both of whom were frightfully burned, died at the emergency hospital. Of the sixty explosion victims in the hospital many are so injured that recovery is not expected.

High up in a shattered copula of the mill two companies of firemen are still battling to recover two and possibly more bodies. From the upper windows of the concrete section of the elevator and from the Elk street viaduct the bodies are plainly visible. Over 500,000 bushels of grain was burned.

200 POISONED BY FOOD

SUSPECT IS A MARRIED MAN

Governor Won't Interfere With Woman's Death Probe.

HOLD INQUEST ON FRIDAY

Salisbury, Md., Citizens Criticize Police For Failing to Place Responsibility For Miss Wainwright's Death.

Salisbury, Md., June 26.—Complaints are heard here that the local authorities are not sufficiently energetic in placing the responsibility for the death of pretty Florence Wainwright.

Indignant citizens started a movement to have Governor Goldsborough take a hand in the case. The governor, however, says that as yet he has not been appealed to and will take no action until asked to do so.

The governor declares he has confidence enough in the local state officers to believe they will do everything in their power to bring the guilty person or persons to justice.

It is now assured that Miss Wainwright's death was due to an operation. The identity of the purchaser of a box of pills found in the young woman's desk has been definitely learned. His name is withheld, but suspicion is directed against a married man.

It is now believed that Miss Wainwright did not die at her desk in the gas office, where her body was found, and that the box of pills which were placed near her had little if anything to do with her death.

In fact, it has now become pretty well settled that Miss Wainwright came to her death from an illegal operation performed not long before her body was discovered. It is more than probable that such an operation was not performed in the gas office, and some hold to the theory that it took place in the yard of the office, and that the young woman was then carried into the office and placed in her chair, her hands folded in her lap, to make it appear that she had died in this position.

One of the officials investigating the case stated that he had his mind fully made up as to the identity of the guilty party and that on Friday there would be some witnesses from out of town, one from Philadelphia in particular, who would establish the guilt and place the missing "link" of circumstantial evidence.

The police who collected the personal effects of the young woman at the gas office went to the home of the girl, where they found that all letters and other personal effects had been destroyed. The parents refused absolutely to discuss the case.

Miss Wainwright was a very popular young woman in Salisbury, of a good family and had a host of friends. For five years she had been the gas company's bookkeeper, and her work there was well done.

When Miss Wainwright's body was discovered there were no marks of any kind found upon it, with the exception of a small scar on the right cheek near the eye, and this may have been caused by a death struggle. Several of her hairpins were on the floor, and a part of her hair hanging down, and her dress was almost unpinned about the neck.

When the jury was first summoned on Saturday Harry Dennis was made foreman and all the members were sworn to secrecy, but some of the evidence has come to light, and it is said to show that at least three persons were with the young woman when she died, though all had left some hours before her brother-in-law found her body.

Washington, June 26.—Representative Smith, of Texas, has appealed to President Wilson to see that Americans in El Paso would not suffer in the threatened battle at Juarez between the Mexican federalists and the Constitutionalists.

The president referred Mr. Smith to Secretary Garrison, who told him that two regiments of cavalry, with machine guns, could be assembled on the Texas border within twelve hours.

Burned After Quarrel.

Lima, O., June 26.—Two men, Joseph Felipe and Vito Steuhano, lost their lives in a building in South Lima. A midnight quarrel ended in a quarrel. Felipe is said to have gone to sleep in another room with a flaming torch and a moment later the house was enveloped in flames.

THE MAN IN DOUBT

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

As I traveled a mountain road of West Virginia I came upon a squatter seated on a log in front of his pole cabin, and after we had given each other good day he asked:

"Bound for the camp meetin' at Cedar Grove, stranger?"

"I hadn't heard there was one there," I replied.

"Yes, and it's a whooper. Powerful lot of prayin' and slagin' over that."

"Aren't you interested in it?"

"I ar' and I hain't. I sorter want to go, and then I sorter think I hain't better. That's the way with the old woman too."

"You think there may be trouble there?"

"Oh, no."

"Too busy with your work?"

"No, stranger. The Lawd order be at that camp meetin', hadn't he?"

"I should say so."

"And he order gin us a fair deal if the old woman and me went over?"

"Yes."

"But what I'm afraid of is that he won't."

I looked at him and wondered what he meant, and after a minute he went on:

"Sit down and be to home, and I'll tell you a bit of a story. It happened 'fars ago. You see, me and the old woman had both bin havin' chills and fever, shakin' like scared rabbits one day and a-burnin' up the next, and I was almost too weak to lift an ax when a feller named Abe Brockford sot out to humiliate me. He wasn't doin' any braggin' as long as I was able to be about, but when he heard how poorly I was he squared off in front of the cabin one night and shouted:

"'Hello thar, inside! Am I makin' a mistake in supposin' this to be the residence of Bill Hope?"

"'Yo' ain't," says I as I crawls to the door in my weakness.

"'Come out like a man and squar' off at me!' says he.

"I told him I'd been freezin' and burnin' and couldn't fight a rabbit, but that only made him wess.

"'Bill Hope, if yo've got any mercy in yo'r heart come out yere and dance around while I pulverize yo'r bones!"

"It hurt me mighty bad to be talked to that way," said the old man, "but I was helpless about it. All I could do was to shut the door and fling myself on the bed and cuss and weep.

The old woman tried to console me, but the feller kept his mouth goin' till I was purty nigh crazy. By and by I says to her:

"'Do yo' reckon that if I prayed to the Lawd for strength my prayer would be answered?"

"That's accordin'," she answers.

"What do yo' want the strength for?"

"To go out and smash Abe Brockford."

"Then yo' won't git it. The Lawd ain't mixin' up in sich rows."

"But he might if yo' prayed too."

"But I shan't do it. When the critter out thar gets tired of talkin' he'll go home."

"I lay quiet for half an hour, but Abe didn't go, and when the old woman sees how bad I was feelin' she says:

"'Bill, I'm willin' to try a sort of experiment. It ain't right to bother the Lawd with our troubles, and prayers and fightin' don't go together, but under the circumstances I'll do what I kin."

"All of a sudden I begun to feel stronger, and by the time the old woman had finished I told her that I was all right to go out an' drive Abe into the ditch."

"Better not go," she says as she looks troubled.

"Why not?"

"'Bekase I'm not sush about it. I prayed hard 'nuff, but I haven't got the feelin' that yo' are gwyne out to whop anybody. Sorter feels to me that yo'll git the worst of it."

"It was mighty curious about my gittin' strong," mused Bill, "and to this day I can't make it out. Perhaps it was all owing to my madness. The old woman hung on fur me not to go, but I put her aside and rushed out. It was a darkish night, but I saw Abe standin' a few feet away and sailed for him. I was gwyne to whop him blind in two minits, but I hadn't counted on startin' things. Fustly, the critter had got tired and gone home, and, secondly, a powerful big 'b'ar had taken his place. I knowed it as I grabbed his fur, but it was then too late. He jest hauled off with his right paw and fetched me a swat on the side of the head that put me out of it, and it was daylight befo' I come to and found myself on the bed."

"What happened?" I asked of the old woman.

"'Experientin'!" she answers.

"As how?"

"'Prayin' to the Lawd to back yo' to wallup Abe Brockford. Abe slipped out and a 'b'ar slipped in, and as high as I kin make out Providence didn't stand by yo' for shucks."

"And that's the reason you are in doubt about going to the camp meetin' is it?" I asked as he finished his story.

"'It ar', stranger."

"But I don't exactly see the point."

"'Plain as mud, sah. I'd go thar to fight Satan, wouldn't I?"

"In a way, yes."

"And 'spose the Lawd would slip him out on me and slip a half dozen wildcats in on me to take his place!"

MINNESOTA MASTER.

A Progressive Farmer Now at the Helm in Minnesota.

The Minnesota state grange no longer has a lady as its master, as Mrs. Sarah G. Baird, who has been at the head of the Order for the past eight years, retired this year and is succeeded by Charles L. Rice, a wide awake, earnest Patron, from whose leadership much is expected.

State Master Rice is one of the best known farmers in Austin, Minn., as a breeder of thoroughbred Percheron horses, Hereford cattle, Shropshire sheep, Chester White hogs and Plymouth Rock poultry. Having been extensively engaged in this business, Mr. Rice's acquaintance among the farmers of Minnesota is very large, and his leadership is certain to be of pronounced character. He was the first master of Enterprise grange, organized three years ago. He was elected master of Mower County Pomona grange when it was organized last spring, and for two years he filled the office of state lecturer. Under his direction the state grange will be safely progressive and conservative and is sure to go forward along all worthy lines.

GREAT SESSION PROMISED.

Massachusetts Patrons Will Make Novel Exhibit in Boston.

The next session of the Massachusetts state grange is to be held at Boston, Dec. 9-11, this decision having been reached by unanimous vote of the executive committee. Tremont Temple has been engaged for the three days, one of the most beautiful assembly halls in New England, and headquarters arrangements have been made at the United States hotel, while liberal accommodations for delegates will be made at other hotels. An attendance of fully 5,000 grange members is expected at this annual session.

In connection therewith an interesting feature will be carried out, which is certain to have the enthusiastic cooperation of all the Patrons of the state. A second hall has been hired, adjoining Tremont Temple, in which will be held as a feature of the state grange an "agricultural exhibit of Massachusetts quality." It is planned to show a specimen of everything that grows on Massachusetts soil, displayed in an attractive way, and every specimen must have been grown or produced by a member of the grange in Massachusetts. There will be no competitive show, no premiums, no ribbons and no scoring. It will be simply an exhibition of these products, with nothing except absolutely first quality admitted. The different sections will all be represented by their products, particularly as Massachusetts is fast becoming a state of specialized agricultural cultivation. This exhibit will be opened at 3 p. m. on Monday and will continue until 11 o'clock on Wednesday night. It will be free to every one and will doubtless draw thousands of people. With such an exhibit held in the center of the great metropolitan district of Boston, within a stone's throw of the capitol and in the very heart of the shopping district, the results which constitute the motive for this undertaking are very certain to be accomplished—(1) to reveal the extent and excellence of the agricultural products of Massachusetts; (2) to demonstrate the part the grange everywhere is taking to promote agriculture in efficiency and strength.—National Grange Monthly.

Want Their Bills.

Greenwich, Conn., has fifty-seven millionaires within its borders. It also has mosquitoes in plenty. Likewise it had 900 cases of malaria last year. Inasmuch as mosquitoes are malaria distributors par excellence, the village physicians asked the town authorities for an extermination fund of $5,400 which they didn't get. Then the fifty-seven varieties of millionaires were appealed to and they said, "Sure, the mosquito must go," and they subscribed $280. But they refuse to pay until the mosquitoes send in their bills.

The report for the 1912 cotton crop, which was issued a short time since, puts the total crop at 14,295,500 bales of 500 pounds each. In the production of this crop over 25,000 gineries were operated. Texas led in cotton production, her output being 5,120,252 bales; Georgia second, with 1,849,503 bales; Alabama third, with 1,280,750 bales; and South Carolina fourth, with 1,215,573 bales, while Oklahoma and Mississippi each produced a trifle over 1,000,000 bales each.

SULZER'S DIRECT PRIMARY BILL LOST

New York Senate Voted It Down by Big Majority.

Albany, N. Y., June 26.—The state senate heaped insult upon injury to Governor William Sulzer by defeating his direct primary bill a second time, without even debating the measure one way or the other, before the roll call began. The vote was 28 to 19 against the governor's bill. At the regular session it was 42 to 8.

The assembly then passed the Blawie long and short bills approved by the Democratic state organization, which will reduce the cost of conducting elections upstate, it being estimated that they will save $1,000,000 annually. Later in the day the senate passed the same bills by a party vote. This places them before the governor for the third time, as a bill with similar provisions was passed twice at the regular session and vetoed each time.

Talk of compromise again was the chief subject of discussion among the legislators, as it was supposed that the governor would be disheartened by the double defeat of his bill. The only word that came from the executive chamber, however, was: "The battle has just begun."

Governor Sulzer became the object of ridicule in the senate. Only two of the senators who opposed his bill at the regular session changed their vote in favor of it.

MINERS FALL TO DEATH

Two Men Plunge 1200 Feet Down a Shaft Near Pottsville.

Pottsville, Pa., June 26.—Dropping 1200 feet down the shaft of the Keweenaw William colliery of the Atlantic Coal company, in the Schuylkill valley, near Middleport, Peter Musk and Michael Mero were dashed to death.

The two men were working on a battery doing some blasting. The concussion loosened this platform of timbering and they plunged headlong to their doom.

Tons of earth and debris were loosened and fell upon and about them at the bottom of the shaft. It took a rescue party fifteen hours to recover the bodies.

SAVES DROWNING SISTER

Girl Jumps Into Susquehanna River and Rescues Her From Death.

Sunbury, Pa., June 26.—Miss Clara Gilbert, an athletic young woman, eighteen years old, saved her sister Mabel, two years her senior, from being drowned in the Susquehanna river. She had gone down twice, when the other girl, not thinking of her personal danger, plunged into the river and after a struggle dragged her ashore.

The young women are members of a camping party on an island near Winfield, and Miss Gilbert was out in a canoe. She went to turn in the craft, when it upset and threw her into twelve feet of water.

The Weather.

Cloudy today; fair tomorrow; south winds.

A corncrib on one side of a fence and an alfalfa pasture on the other will serve to give about as ideal a feed combination as it is possible to have for the growing pigs. The ration is not only the best but also the cheapest that can be had.

The government report on the condition of winter wheat April 1 of the present year is 91.4 per cent as compared with 80.6 per cent for April 1, 1912. The average condition of rye was 80.3 per cent of a normal yield as compared with 87.9 per cent a year ago.

THE SWINEHERD.

Hogs turned into cowpeas when the peas are about ripe should increase 300 to 500 pounds per acre, and the land will be better later from growing the peas.

The idea that anything is good enough for a pig is a mistaken one. Pigs need exercise, for their sole purpose and use in life are to produce muscle.

A good plan is to make the hog lots long and narrow and sow them to pasture, plowing up alternately.

There is no animal that responds more quickly or more profitably to good treatment than the pig. When the hogs have free access to salt there is little danger of their eating enough to injure themselves.

It is almost impossible to crowd the young pigs too fast, provided you have the right kind of food and care.

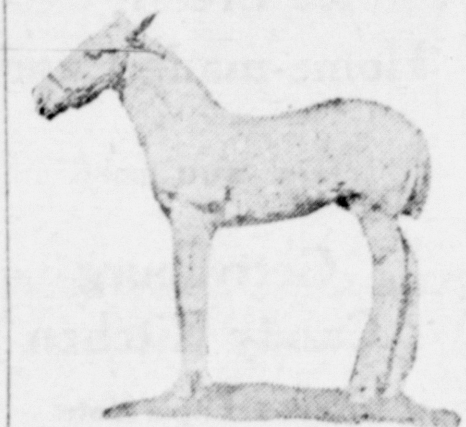

CARE OF SPRING FOALS.

Safe Method of Handling the Mare and Her Offspring.

When work first begins after foaling go very slow with the mare, writes Annandale in the National Stockman. Her muscles will be a little stiff. Toughest her into the work gradually. Feed her all the good, clean grain and bran she will eat up clean, a pound of good hay per day for every hundred-weight she weighs, and when grass grows keep her in the stable at night, no matter what the general practice may be with the other horses. If you turn her out to grass you will change the quality, composition and effect of her milk, and the foal will start scouring just as surely as the mare gets her belly filled with grass. That will set him away back at the best, whereas if he is carried along on a uniform supply of milk from his dam he will not suffer from digestive troubles.

This is the keynote of the whole performance. If you feed this mare the amount of grain and hay she should have to nurse the foal, do her work and retain condition, she will have no room inside her for a wad of slushy grass. She will eat it, though, if she gets the chance, and, if she does, it will give trouble to nurse and her milk will hurt the foal badly.

Feed the mare corn and oats half and half by weight with a fifth as much bran added. Feed the foal oat meal for the first three months, then Percheron horses continue to hold their own as the most popular breed of draft horses in the United States. While Shires, Clydesdales and Belgians have many admirers, and justly so, the Percheron has lost no ground. The farmer who wishes to raise drafters for the market will make no mistake in selecting any of the breeds, but the Percheron seems to have the call in many sections. When coupled with native mares the Percheron has been very successful in the getting of foals that take on the characteristics of their sire. The illustration shows a Percheron foal from a grade mare of Percheron blood.

corn and bruised oats half and half with one-fifth bran—and feed both of them all they will eat up clean and come hungry to the next meal. If it is desired to be especially good to the foal, give him a couple of quarts of fresh new milk from the cow night and morning, not more, and let him have also a handful of linseed oil meal (one size) in his feed right along. See that he has a good stall and a nice shady paddock to run in, with company all ways. Turn his mother in with him at nightfall after she is thoroughly cooled out, feeding her both grain and a little hay at night after they have been turned together. After the mare has eaten her breakfast and her morning meal of hay, the youngster will have pumped her perfectly dry, when she can be led to the work stable, cleaned off, harnessed and go to work.

To take up a little fellow's attention when she is taken away make a practice of giving him his morning drink of new milk about that time. Give him the evening drink around 6 o'clock. Then he won't want to tear his dam to pieces to get her milk away from her when she finally reaches the stall. At noon when the mare comes in milk her under half empty and let her stand until she is quite cool—be sure of that. Then let the little one suck his fill and take the mare away again to the work stable. On coming home at night always milk some of the milk out of the udder. If the mare is hot deprive her of quite one-half of it. Then by the time she is thoroughly cooled out the udder will be quite full again. By hand milking this way the flow of milk is not decreased, even though there is an apparent waste. Mares make milk quickly, and their productive qualities can be increased just as those of half-bred can.

Value of Good Roads.

One of our most able writers on rural economics has said that he would deduct $5 per acre from the price of a farm for every mile away from town or shipping point. He has not put it any too strongly, for the market and facilities for marketing are large elements in the value of a farm. It is variously estimated that a farm in a locality where the roads are generally improved is worth from $10 to $25 per acre more than the same farm would be worth if the roads were unimproved.

NINE NEW CARDINALS SOON TO BE CREATED

Pope Pius May Elevate Two Americans at Consistory.

Rome, June 26.—It was learned from a source close to the Vatican that Pope Pius has decided to call another consistory in October, when nine new cardinals will be created.

One American prelate, and perhaps two, are almost certain to be elevated to the Sacred College.

Pope Pius is much distressed by reports of dissensions among the heads of the Roman Catholic church. According to these reports, the Liberals, led by Cardinal Rampolla, are trying to bring about the removal of Cardinal Merry del Val from his office of papal secretary of state. If they are successful Cardinal Falconio, former papal delegate to the United States, will probably be chosen as a "compromise secretary."

DIES IN BATHER'S ARMS

Three-Year-Old Frightened When His Mother Takes Him Into Surf.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 26.—While Mrs. Mary Bromstein, of Philadelphia, was bathing in the surf with her son Isador, three years old, the child became so frightened that he subsequently died.

Mrs. Bromstein is stopping at one of the boardwalk lodging houses in the lower beach and had been bathing every morning, leaving the child on the beach. But other women and men called to her, "Let's take Izzy in." The mother did so, and while in the water found that something was wrong, the child being apparently frightened. She screamed and carried the child to the beach.

The beach doctors and Dr. Bossert, with the doctors from the Atlantic City hospital, worked over the child an hour in vain.

Spanish Kill 100 Moors.

Madrid, June 26.—News was received by the war office from Tetuan, Morocco, that 100 Moors had been killed and 500 wounded in a bloody battle with Spanish soldiers in the Spanish zone of Morocco. The Spaniards lost thirty-three killed and fifty wounded. The tribesmen were severely defeated and retreated in great disorder.

Is Doyle Most Valuable Second Baseman?

New York baseball scribes say Larry Doyle, the Giants' second baseman, is the most valuable infielder in the National league. They claim that when Larry is absent from the team for any length of time the infield goes to pieces. Doyle's value to the team outside of playing ability lies in the fact that he is a splendid coach. The New York pencil pushers say his advice to his side partners has helped improve their work in the defensive line. Critics of outside cities do not agree with the New Yorkers. They declare Doyle is an erratic player. One day he puts up a sensational game and the next goes all to pieces. When going good he is a heavy batter, a speedy base runner, an accurate thrower and a good fielder. He covers as much ground as any other man in the position in the National league. But when he has an off day he shows up like an amateur.

Agnew Promising Catcher.

Ray Schalk is not the only new catching star of the season. Another young catcher making good in the American league is Sam Agnew, secured by draft by the Browns from the Vernon club of the Pacific Coast league. Agnew possesses an arm far above the average, and American league base runners have developed a wholesome respect for his prowess.

Konetchy Useful Player.

First Baseman Ed Konetchy, who beat the Cubs recently by pitching four extra innings for the Cardinals, was not making his mound debut. Three years ago he finished a game in Brooklyn after the regular St. Louis pitchers had been exhausted, and he pitched a full contest in Cincinnati in 1911.

Propose Changes In Soccer Rules.

Among the alterations to the laws of the association football game to come before the English Football association it is proposed that opponents shall not approach within ten yards of the ball when a free kick is taken, unless standing on their own goal line.

Pittsburgh Has Blind Fan.

Charles Knight is the name of a blind fan in Pittsburgh who has been attending games regularly since 1901. He says his hearing is developed to such an acute stage that he can tell everything that is going on without seeing it.

Critics Tout Infielder Pratt.

Derrill Pratt, the young Brownie, in the opinion of St. Louis baseball experts is the best second sacker in Ban Johnson's organization. He is a good batter and very clever on the base lines.

Look For Improvement In Brennan.

Ad Brennan of the Phillies has learned how to throw the weight of his body into his pitching, which should increase his speed and lasting power by 50 per cent, says Manager Doolin.

Hofman Back In His Stride.

Artie Hofman looks to be back in his stride as a player again, and if he is Pittsburgh has a man who will help a lot toward winning a pennant.

Janvrin Weak on Fly Balls.

Weakness on fly balls is said by Philadelphia critics to be the worst fault in the first base play of young Janvrin of the Boston Red Sox.

Lajoie Hardest Hitter, Says Elberfeld.

Kid Elberfeld opines that Nap Lajoie hits the ball harder than anybody else that ever took a bat in hand.

Grange Not In Politics.

Politicians and political editors are often ready to grasp at any straws that seem to lead aid during a campaign. Every now and then an effort is made to drag the grange name and grange influence into partisan politics. Such an attempt was made some days ago by one of the great daily papers. This paper gave a long article giving a prominent granger's political views and in the same issue used a cartoon showing a farmer marked "State Grange" pointing to a row of candidates on the side of a building, and underneath was the expression, "There's my colors."

To those who are not familiar with the grange this would lead to the opinion that the grange was allied with one of the three prominent parties. Such is not the case. The grange does not tangle up in partisan politics. It stands for principles, not for parties. It would be suicidal for it to ally itself to any party. Such cartoons as show the grange lined up with any political party are attempts to mislead the people. The grange has done much to clear our political atmosphere by leading its members to think for themselves on the great problems of the day, but no political party has any strings on it.—National Stockman.

Man Wants but Little.

"Please, mum," said the tramp, "would you be so kind as to let me have a needle and thread?"

"Well, y-e-s," said the housewife at the door, "I can let you have that."

"Thankee, mum. Now, you'd oblige me very much if you'd let me have a bit of cloth for a patch."

"Yes, here is some."

"Thankee very much, mum. It's a little different color from my suit, I see. Perhaps, mum, you could spare me some of your husband's old clothes that this patch will match."

"Well, I declare! You're clever, my man, and I'll give you an old suit. Here is one."

"Thankee greatly, mum. I see it's a little large, mum, but if you'll kindly furnish me with a square meal mebby I can fill it out."—Exchange.

The Commonwealth Male Quartet

AT THE 1913 CHAUTAUQUA.

These "big town" entertainers are known in a dozen States. Niagara Falls, Milwaukee, Galveston, Richmond, Rochester, Harrisburg have all heard them in the last season, and the enthusiastic comment of committees and press all down the line has been "the most versatile troupe in Lyceum work!" Every one is a master of make-up, and mimicry, solo and chorus work. Besides, the first tenor plays the piano and the baritone gives readings. Chautauqua has secured them to give the assembly this summer two hours packed full of every thing delightful from a Southern melody with banjo accompaniment to the impersonation of "Uncle Billy" in a humorous recitation.
